Another conference to settle the matter will be held in Washington o-day. Those persons best posted regarding the matter predict that the schedule recently agreed upon will be upset. If these expectations are borne out, an open market for steel products is altogether likely to gide result, and the probability is that there will be a radical though temporary drop in steel prices. #### BOWIE ENTRIES.

In the late session profit taking caused some recension from the high prices of the day, but the tone at the close was strong and sentiment was decidedly optimistic.

This promises to be another unusually important week for Wall Street, for it is indicated that a number of questions that have a great influence on security values will come to a decision. The most important of these in the minds of speculators is the steel price decision, which is difficult of solution because of the divergent views of the various Government department beads. The maintenance of the schedule of prices recently agreed those of the divergent views of the various Government department beads.
